Platt Farm Preserve

The Southbury Land Trust, Inc. preserved the 110 acre Platt Farm in 2001. Located on Flood Bridge Road, the northern portion of the farm is somewhat rugged and is excellent habitat for nesting birds, such as woodcock, indigo bunting, warblers and field sparrows. Its easternmost edge is the end of a seven mile long traprock ridge. The southern portion of the farm spans from Flood Bridge Road to the Pomperaug River. About three quarters is open hayfield, with the remainder mature floodplain forest and woodlands.

The Platt Farm Trail system affords the public maximum enjoyment of the many attributes of the farm while preserving and protecting its plants, animals and agriculture. Keep in mind, these are mowed trails - their condition will vary with the season and weather.

Flood Bridge Road, a byway which was designated by the Town of Southbury as a scenic road, bisects Platt Farm. The road runs between Main Street South to Route 172.

The Platt Farm Trail system originates at the kiosk. Parking is available in the main lot and at Flood Bridge Road pullouts as noted on this map.

The Southbury Land Trust hopes you enjoy our beautiful Platt Farm.
